BIBLICAL PANELS TO DECORATE
UNIVERSITY BIBLE BUILDING

WACO, Tex.--(BP)--Sixty-eight limestone panels, each depicting a scene from the Bible, will reach twice around the Tidwell Bible Building now under construction on the Baylor University campus.

George C. Humphrey, chairman of the Baylor religion department which will be housed in the new building, revealed that the stones will be mounted high on the $600,000 building. Twenty-eight scenes from the Old Testament will encircle the building's tower, and forty from the New Testament will be mounted at the third floor level.

Designs for the panels were created by Ira A. Correll, an Austin octogenarian, and approved by Baylor religion teachers. Actual sculpture is being done by three generations of the Corrells.

Only fourteen stones are on immediate order, Humphrey said. The others will be ordered as money becomes available.
