GIMMICK---Paul Stevens, right, director of Southern Baptist Radio-TV Commission, gets a look at publicity tools, sometimes called gimmicks. Last year, the TV Commission entitled one of its dramatic films "Gimmick." Also looking over display of publicity aids, carried by woman at left, is T. Sloane Guy, superintendent, Southern Baptist Hospitals. They were attending Southern Baptist Promotion Conference.--(BP) Photo.

GRABBING FOR AIR---S. A. (Jack) Whitlow, executive secretary of Arkansas Baptist State Convention, Little Rock, is grabbing for air--- the balloons in the aisle to his right. A swarm of balloons suddenly filled the chapel of the Baptist Sunday School Board during a demonstration on publicity methods at Southern Baptist Promotion Conference in Nashville. To Whitlow's left is Rogers Smith, Richmond, Va., from the Foreign Mission Board personnel office.--(EP) Photo.

SHE MADE AN IMPRESSION---An attractive Baptist Sunday School Board receptionist made a real impression on Editor W. Guy Stracener of the Florida Baptist Witness, Jacksonville. Stracener was presiding over Southern Baptist Promotion Conference in Nashville when the lass, armed with rubber stamp and ink pad, put a message in his palm. It was a message promoting the Baptist Press, news service of the Southern Baptist Convention serving the Witness and other papers.--(BP) Photo.
