

July 1, 1962

College Craze Called
'Insanity' By Dean

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (BP)--Baptist educators were told here by one of their number that the trend to establish more and more denominational colleges is "insanity."

They also got the opinion from another speaker that, 30 years from now, Baptists will probably be less reluctant to accept federal funds.

Another person who addressed them reported on a small scale survey in which Baptist pastors gave their opinions on how the denomination's colleges should be run.

William Hugh McEniry Jr., dean of Stetson University (Baptist), DeLand, Fla., told the Southern Association of Baptist Colleges and Schools here:

"All over the Southland, Baptists are saying, 'Let's go build us another college.' This is insanity. There is a good case to be made for saying that many of our colleges should pay their debts and close their doors."

Dean McEniry said Baptist people should know "what they're up against in supporting Christian higher education. If we have reached a point in which churches no longer wish to support colleges and universities, this is a decision that will have to be made."

He told them the answer to everything "isn't money" but that a college official making $7000 at a Baptist school can't forever withstand the pressure of an offer of $15,000 or $18,000 for doing the same job elsewhere--where he is wanted as a Christian as well as an administrator.

Ernest V. Hollis, a federal agency official from Washington, offered the prediction about Baptists "in 30 years or so" being likely to be less reluctant to take federal education assistance. Hollis is director of the college and university branch of the division of higher education in the United States Office of Education.

Through tax-exempt status and the discount benefits of war surplus properties, church-related colleges are already accepting federal aid, according to Hollis.

Gaye L. McGlothlen, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, Nashville, described a survey of 200 preachers (98 responded) on Baptist college matters.

He said 59 favored an all-Baptist faculty at Baptist colleges and 31 were against it. Asked if faculty members should have to sign a doctrinal statement before being elected to the faculty, 69 said "yes" and 18 said "no."

John W. Raley, chancellor of Oklahoma Baptist University, Shawnee, said he did not believe in a signed document for faculty members. Instead, he said, the president ought to have a clear understanding with each prospective faculty member before the college employed him.

In discussing the bounds of academic freedom, some of the deans and presidents attending the meeting said pastors should be just as careful in exercising their freedom of the pulpit.

North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford told the Baptist education group he disapproved of the decision of the United States Supreme Court regarding the offering of prescribed prayer in the public schools.

The association elected J. Ralph Noonkester of Hattiesburg, Miss., its new president. Noonkester is president of William Carey College (Baptist).

Budd E. Smith, of Wingate, N. C., was picked as vice-president. Smith is president of Wingate (Junior) College, a Baptist school. The association reelected H. I. Hester

July 1, 1962

College Craze Called
'Insanity' By Dean

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (BP)--Baptist educators were told here by one of their number that the trend to establish more and more denominational colleges is "insanity."

They also got the opinion from another speaker that, 30 years from now, Baptists will probably be less reluctant to accept federal funds.

Another person who addressed them reported on a small scale survey in which Baptist pastors gave their opinions on how the denomination's colleges should be run.

William Hugh McEniry Jr., dean of Stetson University (Baptist), DeLand, Fla., told the Southern Association of Baptist Colleges and Schools here:

"All over the Southland, Baptists are saying, 'Let's go build us another college.' This is insanity. There is a good case to be made for saying that many of our colleges should pay their debts and close their doors."

Dean McEniry said Baptist people should know "what they're up against in supporting Christian higher education. If we have reached a point in which churches no longer wish to support colleges and universities, this is a decision that will have to be made."

He told them the answer to everything "isn't money" but that a college official making $7000 at a Baptist school can't forever withstand the pressure of an offer of $15,000 or $18,000 for doing the same job elsewhere--where he is wanted as a Christian as well as an administrator.

Ernest V. Hollis, a federal agency official from Washington, offered the prediction about Baptists "in 30 years or so" being likely to be less reluctant to take federal education assistance. Hollis is director of the college and university branch of the division of higher education in the United States Office of Education.

Through tax-exempt status and the discount benefits of war surplus properties, church-related colleges are already accepting federal aid, according to Hollis.

Gaye L. McGlothlen, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, Nashville, described a survey of 200 preachers (98 responded) on Baptist college matters.

He said 59 favored an all-Baptist faculty at Baptist colleges and 31 were against it. Asked if faculty members should have to sign a doctrinal statement before being elected to the faculty, 69 said "yes" and 18 said "no."

John W. Raley, chancellor of Oklahoma Baptist University, Shawnee, said he did not believe in a signed document for faculty members. Instead, he said, the president ought to have a clear understanding with each prospective faculty member before the college employed him.

In discussing the bounds of academic freedom, some of the deans and presidents attending the meeting said pastors should be just as careful in exercising their freedom of the pulpit.

North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford told the Baptist education group he disapproved of the decision of the United States Supreme Court regarding the offering of prescribed prayer in the public schools.

The association elected J. Ralph Noonkester of Hattiesburg, Miss., its new president. Noonkester is president of William Carey College (Baptist).

Budd E. Smith, of Wingate, N. C., was picked as vice-president. Smith is president of Wingate (Junior) College, a Baptist school. The association reelected H. I. Hester of Kansas City, Mo., secretary. He is vice-president of Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

The association voted to hold its June, 1963 meeting on the campus of Oklahoma Baptist University in Shawnee. It set a tentative date of June 18 to begin the meeting.

-30-

Associational Program
Of Finances Developed

(7-1-62)

NASHVILLE (BP)--Beginning in January, 1963, the Stewardship Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention will provide a suggested program for associational missionaries who've asked for a tool to help them promote their associational budgets.

It will be entitled, "A Stewardship Development Program for Baptist Associations," according to Merrill D. Moore of Nashville, the agency's executive director. This is an adaptation of the Forward Program of Church Finance, which has been used by churches to promote their budgets.

The Stewardship Commission reported the associational program has been piloted "successfully" in the Cumberland Baptist Association in the Clarksville, Tenn., area, and in the Green Valley Baptist Association around Henderson, Ky.

"This is a packaged approach to promote church budgets, associational finance and the Cooperative Program," Moore said.

"The association can provide a pattern and a challenge for churches in good budget promotion. It should help the churches to teach the Bible plan of stewardship, thus enabling them to carry out the Great Commission locally and around the world."

The commission also announced that, as of the same date, it will have ready for distribution its materials for smaller churches to use in stewardship development. Less detailed than the Forward Program used by larger churches, it eliminates pledging of the budget.

It is designed for the churches taking their first steps in budget promotion. The new program replaces the former "beginner and intermediate" stages which were adaptations of the Forward Program.

The theme, "Sharing Christ with the Whole World," will be used in these 1963 and other stewardship materials. This is in keeping with the world missions emphasis for the year in the Baptist Jubilee Advance.

The associational program was to be presented to associational missionaries at Home Missions Conferences at Glorieta, N. M., and Ridgecrest, N. C., Baptist Assemblies during the summer.

-30-

Swiss Baptists May
Open Door To Women

(7-1-62)

ZURICH (BP)--The Swiss Baptist Union held in Zurich what may be the last of its annual conferences consisting entirely of men as delegates. A suggestion from the Swiss Baptist women's organization, that women be received as delegates when men are not available, was accepted by almost unanimous vote of the assembly.

Reports showed a total membership of 1452 in the 14 Baptist churches of German-speaking Switzerland. This was a slight decline, and the 32 baptisms reported for 1961 was the lowest for any year since 1955.

One new church, that of Baden-Wettingen, was admitted to membership in the Union. Contributions for all church causes totaled over 350,000 in Swiss francs, a considerable increase over previous years. (A franc equals about 23 cents in American currency.)

-more-

In connection with the admission of women as delegates, the Baptist Church of Basel proposed an amendment to the constitution of the Union to remove the word "male" from the statement of requirements for the election of delegates. This motion failed by eight votes of the necessary two-thirds majority. The more moderate resolutions of the women's group was then accepted.

The amendment as adopted is as follows: "A church may send a sister as delegate to the Union Conference in case there is an insufficient number of brethren or in case some delegate who is unable to attend cannot be replaced by another male member of the church."

-30-

Pastor Attending
Conference Robbed

(7-1-62)

FORT WORTH (BP)--A San Angelo, Tex., Baptist pastor attending the annual Pastors' Conference at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary was robbed and terrorized here by a gang of teenagers.

R. B. Baker, 33, pastor of the Harris Avenue Baptist Church in San Angelo, said the teenagers held him captive for 2-1/2 hours, threatening his life, robbing him and knocking him to the ground several times.

The youths took everything of value he had, forced him to write more than $50 in checks, stripped his car of accessories and said they would kill him if he called the police.

They robbed Baker of $10 in cash, a billfold, a Baylor University class ring, a wedding band and stripped his car of everything including the gas pedal.

Baker had given two teenagers a ride from a bus station at about 10:30 p. m. when the youths took possession of the car. They drove to a public park where six other boys were waiting, and held the minister captive until about 1 a. m.

It was the third incident of similar nature to occur in the botanical gardens, a scenic park in Fort Worth.

-30-

Seminary Pastors' Meeting
Told To Fight Communism

(7-1-62)

FORT WORTH, Tex. (BP)--More than 500 Baptist pastors here were told they must help answer the challenge of communists "who deny the existence of God and denounce religion as stupid, unscientific, idealistic and superstitious."

C. W. Scudder, professor of Christian ethics at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, urged the sixth annual Southwestern Pastors' Conference to expose the insincerity and the falsity of communist claims, and to speak with the boldness and confidence of prophets.

"Neither the United States nor Russia will have the last word--God will," said Clyde Francisco, professor of Old Testament at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville.

Francisco led a discussion on the Old Testament interpretation of the church during the five-day meeting.

J. T. Allen, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Alexandria, Va., said, "If we do not learn to penetrate and communicate, we become fools who are only interested in expressing ourselves. The most communicable stuff in the world is love," he said.

-more-

July 1, 1962

4

Baptist Press

Next year the pastors' conference will feature discussions on interpretations of the Bible when it meets June 24-28, 1963, announced Jesse Northcutt, dean of Southwestern Seminary's school of theology.

In a special session, minister's wives heard Mrs. John Raley of Shawnee, Okla., say the attributes of success include simplicity, sincerity, sensitivity, and sympathy.

They also heard Mrs. James. E. Coggin of Fort Worth discuss the ministry of the minister's wife.

More than 500 attended the conference, the largest attendance in the meeting's history.