Maryland Baptist College
Dissolves, Closes Doors

269 395

WALKERSVILLE, Md. (BP)--The embryonic Maryland Baptist College here has died aborning, closing its doors before it ever opened as a full-fledged educational institution.

The college office here has been closed, President G. Eugene Kratz has been released of responsibilities, and administrative duties have been assumed by the college trustees' business administration committee.

Final dissolving of the college corporation and nullifying of the charter will follow soon, said Richard O. Satchell of Lutherville, Md., chairman of the business administration committee of the trustees.

Disposition of the campus property, including the Rosenstock Chapel where the college offices were located, may, however, take quite some time.

A special committee of the Baptist State Convention of Maryland is studying property disposition, and will bring some recommendation to the convention for action, either in special or regular session. The seven-member committee is headed by Cecil Anderson, past of Viers Mill Baptist Church, Silver Spring, Md.

The Frederick News here reported that the committee is considering the possibility of either retaining the property as a state assembly ground or for some other purposes or selling it, but no decision has yet been made.

Kratz, president of the proposed school since 1966, said that the only thing that remains of the now dead school is "the funeral, legal dissolution, plus the decisions on what to do with the land and property here."

Kratz was released as president effective March 31 with severance pay of $20,000, and permission to stay in the president's home until July 1.

He told the Frederick Post his future plans call for searching for a comparable post this summer or fall, or perhaps considering post-doctoral study in the event this does not develop.

The Maryland convention will assume college obligations estimated at about $575,000 and expenses, plus the salary of a custodian to maintain the property.

Last November, the Maryland convention voted to ask the college trustees to dissolve the corporation, and voted to appoint the committee to dispose of the property.

In July of 1967 the convention's State Missions Board turned down a request for a $1½ million fund campaign for construction, saying the plan was "not financially feasible."

The Maryland Baptist Convention had approved plans for establishing a Baptist college in the state in 1962, and had purchased the campus here in 1965.

A final audit for the college is now being prepared as one of the final steps in what Kratz called "the funeral" for the now dead college.

Atlanta Churches Seek To Curb Civil Disorders

270 4/4/68 460

ATLANTA (BP)--About 200 Christian churches here have made an urgent move to exert leadership in the city's attempt to eliminate deeply-rooted problems that could spark civil disorders.

The Christian Council of Metropolitan Atlanta, which includes about 40 Baptist churches in its 200-church membership, asked Mayor Ivan Allen Jr. to assemble leadership in education, politics, business and religion to work out immediate steps toward alleviating problems of race and poverty.

-m re-

269-270

Vice President Bill Geren, pastor of the Dogwood Hills Baptist Church, said "This is not just a moral position. This is a direct effort to get religious leaders involved with other community leaders in specific action."

One urgent necessity, according to the council's formal petition, is the matter of housing. The petition read, in part:

"There must be a climate in which every person will have equal opportunity for housing that he can afford. There must be an end to discrimination against qualified persons based on race, sex, age or handicap."

Executive Director Harmon Moore said one of the first moves will be for the council to identify itself with and support a local campaign for open housing.

Geren said the Christian Council would pay the bill if the mayor would issue an invitation to get community leadership to a dinner meeting.

One possibility: "We (the council) will take employers and others on a tour of the city to show them the poor housing conditions, to provide this personal confrontation with the real sore spots."

Moore said the council would identify itself with and support a Chamber of Commerce campaign for improved housing for the poor and would support efforts to achieve equal educational opportunities.

As for a local church's individual action, Moore said: "We hope to build some bridges from the resources of the suburban church to the human needs of the city."

Action that might follow a study of needs with other community leadership are daycare centers, job training, investments in low-income housing, health clinics and preaching and teaching courses on understanding the problems of inner-city life, Moore said.

A rabbi and one of the city's leading Negro pastors and civil rights leaders commended the action of the council. The Jewish leader said most of the Jewish community would join in the efforts.

Geren said he expected the mayor to respond quickly and set a meeting between church leaders and other community leadership before the end of April.

He said he felt Mayor Allen was inclined toward pushing for a degree of open housing.

"If the mayor feels he has the backing of religious leaders, he probably will be more courageous in asking for support of others in the community," Geren said.

Moore said he hoped the concerted Christian action was not coming too late. "We have a great city," he said. "We can solve our problems if we will let God have his way."

Baptist Agencies Win
Top Religious PR Awards

271

4/4/68

395

ST. LOUIS (BP)--Five Southern Baptist agencies won the five top awards for outstanding public relations efforts in competition sponsored here by the Inter-denominational Religious Public Relations Council.

Baptist public relations workers captured the top award in each of five categories in the competition, plus two second place awards.

There were nearly 250 entries in the five categories by religious public relations organizations of nearly every major church body in the nation, plus numerous other religious groups.

Of the 15 awards presented, Southern Baptist public relations workers won seven awards. Methodist agencies won two; United Presbyterian, two; U.S. Presbyterian (Southern), two; Missouri Synod Lutherans, one; and American Lutherans, one.

The Paul M. Hinkhouse award, a cash presentation of $250, for excellence in graphics, design and production, went to the Christian Life Commission of the SBC, Floyd A. Craig, public relations director, for a series of pamphlets entitled "Issues and Answers."

Craig earlier had won seven awards in the Baptist Public Relations competition here the same week, including "Best of Show" for the pamphlet series.

In the Religious Public Relations Council competition, Craig won two other awards -- a first-place in writing for the script of the movie "A Summer's Child," produced for the Baptist General Convention of Oklahoma, and a second-place in photography for "Issues and Answers."

Winning first-place in photography was the SBC Home Mission Board, Jay Durham and Don Rutledge, for a series of photographs on Alaska.

The SBC Radio-Television Commission, Ed Shipman, promotion director, won first in the audio-visual category with the commission's new television series for children, "Jot."

Winning first-place in the public relations campaign category was the Executive Committee of the Southern Baptist Convention for a presentation outlining public relation aspects of the 1967 Southern Baptist Convention in Miami Beach, Fla. The award went jointly to W. C. Fields and Jim Newton.

Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, which last year won the top award in the Paul M. Hinkhouse graphics design competition, won second-place in this category in 1968. John Earl Seelig and Bob Russell were presented the award, for their work on the brochure, "Quest."

In all but the Hinkhouse design category, engraved plaques were presented to the winners.

The Religious Public Relations Council is an inter-denominational organization of about 500 public relations workers for major religious bodies in the nation.

4/4/68 310

HOUSTON (BP)--The program for the Southern Baptist Religious Education Association meeting here June 3-4 just prior to the Southern Baptist Convention will feature three major addresses, a banquet, and will revolve around the theme, "Religious Education ... A Must."

The tentative program for the meeting was prepared and was released by the organization's president, Al Parks, Minister of Education for First Baptist Church, Montgomery.

The three major speakers will be Mrs. J. Winston Pierce, author and wife of Professor Pierce, Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Mill Valley, Calif.; James G. Harris, pastor, University Baptist Church in Fort Worth; and Edward Shipman, promotion director for the SBC Radio-Television Commission, Fort Worth.

The Monday evening program will be devoted to a banquet for association members. All sessions will be held at the First Baptist Church in downtown Houston.

The opening Monday afternoon session will feature addresses by Mrs. Pierce, plus talks by Ellis Bush, State Sunday School Secretary of Alabama, Montgomery, Ala.; Henry Love, Minister of Education, First Baptist Church, Shreveport, La.; William B. Crittenden, layman, Second Baptist Church, Houston, Tex.; and B. A. Clendinning, Training Union Department, Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, Tenn.

The Tuesday morning session will emphasize religious education in the 20th century, with the address by Harris and by Floyd Chafin of the SBC Annuity Board, Dallas; Bob Franklin, Minister of Education, First Baptist Church, Huntsville, Ala.; and Keener Pharr of the Education Division, Southern Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, Tenn.

The closing session will spotlight the address by Shipman on radio and television education, and talks on education and missions by George Wilson, missionary, Hong Kong; Raymond Lee Sikes, missionary for the Home Mission Board, Waco, Tex.; and Philip N. Caskey, student, Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth.

Themes for each session will be "Religious Education ... A Must... In the Home," "...In the 20th Century," and "...In the World." Mrs. Sarah Miller, a church drama worker in Houston, will present a dramatic interpretation of the theme in the opening session.
