Richmond, Virginia---The Foreign Mission Board has adopted a policy on English-speaking churches, which states that it will give financial aid to these churches as it does to other Baptist churches in the same country. The Board will appoint missionaries to serve in the English-speaking churches if they meet the same qualifications as all missionary appointees. The English-speaking churches which receive financial aid from the Foreign Mission Board should relate themselves to local Baptist groups, rather than denominational groups in the United States. They should also present their financial needs to the Missions of the Foreign Mission Board, rather than to churches in the United States.

Fukuoka City, Japan---During a revival at Seinan Gakuin, a Baptist school here, 75 persons accepted Christ as their personal Saviour and 50 others indicated a desire to know more about Christianity. Missionary Frederick M. Horton said, "The revival broke an atmosphere of 'we can't' among the Christian students and more positive Christian witness was made by Christian students during this campaign than has been made in the last several years."
