

March 20, 1959

Louisville Bypassed
From 1927 To 1959

LOUISVILLE--(BP)--More than three decades ago---the year was 1927---Southern Baptists held their annual Convention in Louisville. Although it is the home of their oldest seminary and houses many Baptist institutions, the Convention bypassed Louisville from 1927 to 1959.

Baptist growth has paralleled the growth of the city during the intervening years. Today there are 112 Southern Baptist churches, almost double the 57 churches located here in 1927. The number of missions now stands at 37, more than seven times greater than the five missions operated in 1927.

Total membership has more than tripled, from 25,558 to 83,725.

There are eight Baptist institutions in the city representing all phases of Baptist organization---the local church, the association of churches, the state association, and the Southern Baptist Convention.

Plans are being discussed for two more institutions---a Louisville Baptist college and a Baptist home for the aged. Two of the eight existing institutions are in building programs.

Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, celebrating its 100th anniversary, and Carver School of Missions and Social Work---schools with adjacent campuses---are operated directly by the Southern Baptist Convention. The Baptist Sunday School Board, a Convention agency, operates a Baptist book store in the city.

The Baptist General Association of Kentucky---state Baptist organization---has its office building in Middletown, a suburb of Louisville, having moved there from downtown Louisville in recent years. The general association operates Spring Meadows Children's Home on Shelbyville Rd. caring for 210 children.

Long Run Association of churches (Louisville area), in co-operation with two individual Baptist churches, directs two local missions centers---Central Baptist Chapel and Bethel Baptist Chapel.

The Convention's Home Mission Board, Long Run Association, and a group of Negro Baptists jointly maintain Baptist Fellowship Center ministering to about 125 persons.

The proposed home for the aged would be operated by Long Run Association, either alone or in conjunction with the general association. Greater Louisville Baptist college, with an opening date set in 1961, will be developed on 238 acres purchased on Shelbyville Rd. Pledges toward it now total $2,200,000.

Institutional building programs under way include the James P. Boyce Centennial Library on the campus of Southern Seminary, to cost $1-1/2 million and for which cornerstone will be laid May 20, and a new school of nursing for Kentucky Baptist Hospital.

-30-

Hunke Associate
Arizona Secretary

PHOENIX--(BP)--E. W. Hunke, Jr., was named associate executive secretary of the Baptist General Convention of Arizona in a called March meeting of the convention executive board here.

Hunke has been serving as secretary of missions and stewardship for the convention for the past two years. He will continue to be superintendent of missions.

He takes the place of Ed J. Packwood who held a similar position until a few months ago. Packwood resigned to re-enter private business.

-more-

Charles L. McKay is executive secretary of the convention.

Hunke, before joining the staff of the convention, was an area missionary in Arizona. Prior to that he was pastor at Vernal, Utah; Pittsburg, Calif., and Clovis, Calif.

He attended Baylor University and is a graduate of Fresno State College and Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary.

-30-

Charity Care Fund Drive Organized

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.--(BP)--Fifteen associations of Baptist churches in north Florida have formed a committee to help provide care for charity patients admitted to Baptist Memorial Hospital here.

It is known as "Committee on Charity Work through Baptist Memorial Hospital." It plans to conduct a special Mother's Day offering in north Florida churches to help offset the cost of charity care, estimated to reach $91,000 this year.

Malcolm B. Knight, Jacksonville minister, heads the 1959 drive which has a goal of $75,000.

Knight pointed out that since Baptist Memorial Hospital is an institution of the Southern Baptist Convention rather than a local or state Baptist hospital, it can not make a direct appeal for financial help.

"Our committee can make this appeal," he continued, "and we are very happy with the fine response and interest already shown for it by Baptists all over north Florida."

-30-

Flemings Challenge Baptists In Arizona

PHOENIX--(BP)--The William Flemings of Fort Worth, Tex., challenged Arizona Baptists here to win 3,583 people to Christ by July 1, 1959 and to raise $50,000 for their Grand Canyon College.

If this challenge is met, the Flemings will give to the college $100,000 for building purposes.

A joint session of the executive board of the Baptist General Convention of Arizona and the board of trustees of the college accepted the challenge and began immediately to organize for the campaign.

Charles L. McKay, executive secretary of the convention, was chosen to be the director of the campaign.

He will be assisted by W. D. Lawes, secretary of evangelism for the convention and Vernon Shipp, a Baptist businessman of Phoenix. Lawes will be chairman of the evangelism phase and Shipp the financial.

Fleming talked to the joint session and later to a luncheon of faculty and board members of the college and emphasized their confidence in the young but growing institution.

The Flemings gave a library building to the college last year.

The campus development committee of the board of trustees and the faculty will soon name the type of building to be erected and its purpose.

-30-

Folks & facts

.....A. C. Miller, Nashville, executive secretary of the Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention, attended a meeting in New York City sponsored by the community activities committee of the A.F. of L.--C.I.O. Purpose of the meeting was for church leaders and national labor leaders to discuss their common interests in community moral issues. It was the second annual meeting of its kind; Miller has attended both. -30-

March 20, 1959

'Belle Of Kentucky'
Awaits Convention

LOUISVILLE--(BP)--Louisville, called by Holiday Magazine "belle of Kentucky," is at her best in the spring just when the Southern Baptist Convention meets. If you take your car to Louisville, you will especially enjoy driving through the six major city parks, part of one of the country's finest system of naturally-preserved parks.

Seneca and Cherokee Parks, which adjoin each other, are reached via Lexington Road just west of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. Iroquois Park at the Southern edge of the city has scenic drives and a high-view lookout.

The seminary, at 2825 Lexington Rd. in east Louisville, has a beautiful rolling campus. Near it, on Alta Vista Rd., is Gardencourt, home of the University of Louisville school of music. Both the seminary and university music schools occupy fine old homes.

Also in the eastern part of the city are Cave Hill Cemetery, burial place of George Rogers Clark, at the east end of Broadway; the American Printing House for the Blind, center of Braille printing, at 1839 Frankfort Ave.; and Zachary Taylor National Cemetery and Monument, on Brownsboro Rd. at the edge of the city.

In south-central Louisville, at 2300 South Third St., is the University of Louisville, oldest municipal university in the country. At the north edge of the campus is the Confederate Monument, near the J. B. Speed Memorial Museum. A few blocks to the west is historic Churchill Downs, site of Kentucky Derby.

Louisville is a center of diversified industry. Many plants making a variety of products welcome visitors. For information about plant tours, contact the Louisville Chamber of Commerce.

Louisville's largest industry is General Electric Co.'s giant Appliance Park near Buechel, largest electric home-appliance manufacturing plant in the world. Also near that area are the Louisville assembly plant of Ford Motor Co. and the International Harvester Co. cub tractor plant.

Other major industries include furniture, paints, and varnishes, machinery, distilling, and tobacco.

Louisville is a river city. Lock and Dam 41 at Louisville, near the foot of 14th St., is a favorite spot with sightseers. The falls of the Ohio River may be seen most easily from the Indiana side.

At the levee downtown, near the foot of Third St., is the U. S. Coast Guard Station, only inland river station in the country. Above the downtown area is the boating center.

Many of the finest homes in Jefferson County may be seen from Upper River Rd. east of the city.

Other points of interest include the giant new Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center, off Watterson Expressway near its junction with the North-South Expressway where the Convention is meeting; Bourbon Stock Yard, Main and Johnson Sts., and the daily Courier-Journal and Louisville Times newspaper plant, with radio and TV Stations and a gravure printing company, at Sixth and Broadway downtown.

The City-County government center is located at Sixth and Jefferson Sts.; Hadley Pottery and art gallery, at 1570 Story Ave.; Hillerich and Bradsby plant, at Preston and Finzer, the home of the "Louisville Slugger" baseball bat; a small but growing Railroad Museum on River Rd.; the Howard Steamboat Museum across the river at Jeffersonville, Ind.; and Fontaine Ferry Park amusement center, on Southwestern Parkway in Shawnee Park.

Louisville's retail shopping and hotel area is concentrated around Fourth St. from Broadway to Market.

March 20, 1959

Louisville Bypassed
From 1927 To 1959

LOUISVILLE--(BP)--More than three decades ago---the year was 1927---Southern Baptists held their annual Convention in Louisville. Although it is the home of their oldest seminary and houses many Baptist institutions, the Convention by-passed Louisville from 1927 to 1959.

Baptist growth has paralleled the growth of the city during the intervening years. Today there are 112 Southern Baptist churches, almost double the 57 churches located here in 1927. The number of missions now stands at 37, more than seven times greater than the five missions operated in 1927.

Total membership has more than tripled, from 25,558 to 83,725.

There are eight Baptist institutions in the city representing all phases of Baptist organization---the local church, the association of churches, the state association, and the Southern Baptist Convention.

Plans are being discussed for two more institutions---a Louisville Baptist college and a Baptist home for the aged. Two of the eight existing institutions are in building programs.

Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, celebrating its 100th anniversary, and Carver School of Missions and Social Work---schools with adjacent campuses---are operated directly by the Southern Baptist Convention. The Baptist Sunday School Board, a Convention agency, operates a Baptist book store in the city.

The Baptist General Association of Kentucky---state Baptist organization---has its office building in Middletown, a suburb of Louisville, having moved there from downtown Louisville in recent years. The general association operates Spring Meadows Children's Home on Shelbyville Rd. caring for 210 children.

Long Run Association of churches (Louisville area), in co-operation with two individual Baptist churches, directs two local missions centers---Central Baptist Chapel and Bethel Baptist Chapel.

The Convention's Home Mission Board, Long Run Association, and a group of Negro Baptists jointly maintain Baptist Fellowship Center ministering to about 125 persons.

The proposed home for the aged would be operated by Long Run Association, either alone or in conjunction with the general association. Greater Louisville Baptist college, with an opening date set in 1961, will be developed on 238 acres purchased on Shelbyville Rd. Pledges toward it now total $2,200,000.

Institutional building programs under way include the James P. Boyce Centennial Library on the campus of Southern Seminary, to cost $1-1/2 million and for which cornerstone will be laid May 20, and a new school of nursing for Kentucky Baptist Hospital.

-30-

Hunke Associate
Arizona Secretary

PHOENIX--(BP)--E. W. Hunke, Jr., was named associate executive secretary of the Baptist General Convention of Arizona in a called March meeting of the convention executive board here.

Hunke has been serving as secretary of missions and stewardship for the convention for the past two years. He will continue to be superintendent of missions.

He takes the place of Ed J. Packwood who held a similar position until a few months ago. Packwood resigned to re-enter private business.

-more-